Dear Paul:

It is my great pleasure to inform you that Sound & Vision, the industry-leading magazine and Web site for audio and home theater enthusiasts, has selected the PSB Synchrony speaker system as our 2007 Editors' Choice Audio Product of the Year. This is no small achievement: we test quite a number of speakers and audio components each year, and only a handful rise up to be recognized with Editors' Choice Awards at year end. Although we sometimes debate heatedly which of these deserves Product of the Year status, you should be proud that our decision on the Synchrony was obvious and unanimous. All of us on the editorial staff who heard the Synchrony One were immediately impressed with the striking clarity and transparency of its midrange and highs, and the extended and utterly musical quality of the bass. As our reviewer Dan Kumin commented in his review, this system "gives you nearly all the sonic precision that money can buy, for about one-tenth of what the world's most expensive speakers ask." I couldn't have summed it up any better.

Those of us at Sound & Vision who have followed you and your company through the years know the scope of your accomplishment in consistently giving audiophiles accurate, high-end sound at attainable prices. We are aware that you've poured your accumulated knowledge of 35 years as a musician-engineer into this new flagship design, and I'm here to tell you you've succeeded in creating something very special. We join collectively now to offer our congratulations to you on your triumph, and on receiving this honor.

Sincerely,

Rob Sabin
